Employee Response To Division Meetings

President Ralph G. Rodgers, Jr., gave the presentation at each division meeting personally and professionally. Employees respond with enthusiasm and pride.

Newman Lake

"It was really great. It was a good thing for all employees to get first hand information from President Rodgers. The presentation was excellent.

Employees eyes were opened when administration shared things that are planned. All in all it was fantastic. I think we should have more of these meetings -- maybe twice a year."

Susan Sorenson

"I'm all for it! I liked it. It's best for us in the long run -- it will be good for our children and grandchildren."

Rose Fa'oliu

"I liked it -- I hope it's not one time only because by seeing where we've come and where we're planning to go as a company it puts everything into perspective for us as employees.

I become more in tune with management needs and budgets, etc.

I was glad to see a company so open with it's employees. I've never had a company so open before. I was really pleased and appreciated the vice presidents and President Rodgers taking the time to sit in with every division and present this information. It was good because more personalized questions could be answered right there.

Once a year would be nice."

Kim Napoleon

"We liked it because it explained where the money goes. We would have liked more time to ask more questions -- maybe if it had been scheduled for the whole morning. It would be good to have more of these division meetings every few months."

Valerie Grace

"I'm glad they did it so we know what we accomplished in '86 and know what we have to look forward to in '87, '88, '89, etc.

It was good to meet with our new division."

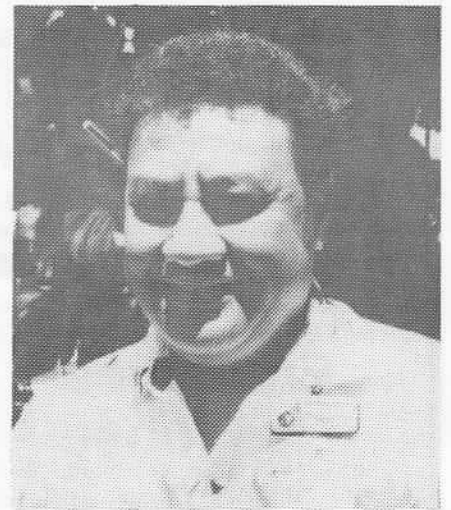

Wilma Fonoimoana

"I was really happy when they called a division meeting because it's important for us to have hindsight of the operation. It helps us to better prepare for the needs of the Center.

When President Rodgers bore his testimony on how he knows the good work done here my crew felt good, cared for and appreciated. They understood the money situation better. They understood that the Center was made up of them.

As a result their performance went up 100%! President Rodgers made a great impact on my people. He was very truthful and honest.

We also felt that the video was worthy -- everyone thought it was very professional. We realized how beautiful the Center really is from seeing it on the video. We are excited about it and feel it is a good representation of us."

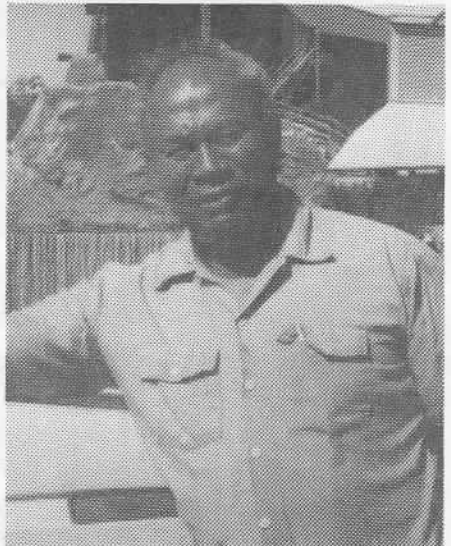

Alii Toelupe

"We all thought it was great. The thing I liked the most was no other administration had shared plans with us like this.

It was educational, informative, and clears the air for the 'doubting Thomas'. We were given a clear picture for everybody -- including the future of the community.

We had a great feeling leaving the meeting with a picture in our minds of how great the Center is and feeling a part of it.

There are no words to express what has been done here for us. The villages are beautiful. We're are part of the corporation so we need to push together not opposite."

William Kanahele

"The meeting was great! What I liked about it was the progress. I think President Rodgers made the best improvements ever. I'm all for it. It means more progress for PCC and the community.

I think we need some more improvements in PCC like these new Asian areas mentioned to keep the young crowds coming."

Training Tips

My Pattern for the future is bound up in a desire to use my talents for the good of mankind.

I believe in people. I have always been more interested in people than in ideas or things.

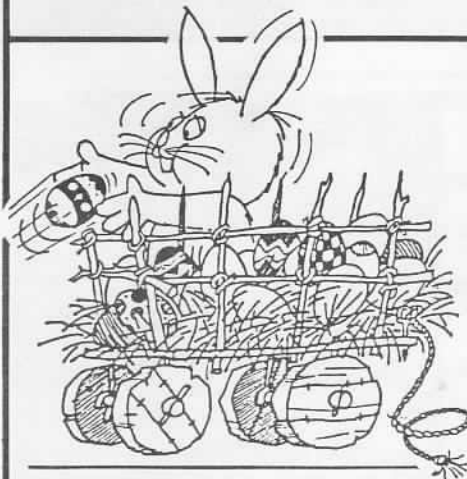

I can truthfully say that I have never met a person in whom I was not interested.

I believe that people are innately good and that they want to be loved, respected, and remembered.

ART LINKLETTER

In relation to Mr. Linkletter, the Polynesian Cultural Center has been and will always be a "People" business. Ideas or things don't make people....people create ideas and things. People have created what the PCC is today and will continue to create new ideas to increase our rate of success as we work for the good of mankind and treat each other with love, respect, and trust.
