

Micronesia Here She Comes

Jeannie Te'o was excited and surprised when she received her call to the Micronesia Guam Mission. She had expected to be called to the states -- somewhere like California or Little Rock Arkansas.

A letter sent by her Mission President said she would be learning the language in the field and the discussions in the Mission Training Center. In the Micronesia Guam Mission there are nine major languages and several dialects.

James Chase, also an employee for the Center recently returned from his mission to Micronesia Guam this past June and has been giving helpful tips to Jeannie.

Jeannie will be leaving on August 28th. She'll be stopping in L.A. to visit her recently widowed grandmother and will also go to the L.A. Temple. She will enter the MTC on September 3rd.

When asked why she decided to go on a mission Jeannie said "I've always wanted to go on a mission since I was a little girl and also to follow my grandfathers example." Her grandfather, Iati Te'o, recently passed away but not before hearing of Jeannie's call. He served 13 honorable missions during his lifetime and it was one of his requests that Jeannie serve also.

Originally from San Francisco, Jeannie was raised in Honolulu and Waianae. The oldest of six daughters (Jeannie, Janice, Jackie, Jennifer, Janel, Jeannette), Jeannie has travelled a lot with her family around the U.S. She has been attending the BYU 10th Ward and served as the Activity Chairperson under Bishop Taofi Magalei.

Jeannie is a junior at BYU-HC majoring in Business with a Travel minor. However, she has been working full time all year in order to save money for her mission. In fact, the first thing she wanted to say about her mission was "send money (nah)"

In 1982 Jeannie was a freshman in school and began working at the Center on the Alii Canoe in the canoe pageant, she then worked as a Canoe Tour Guide which was one of her favorite places to work, then she moved to Reservations where she is currently employed.

Jeannie has been working hard at memorizing scriptures and learning the discussions, however, she still finds time to go dancing and throw parties -- two of her favorite hobbies. She is hoping to be sent to the "boonies" so she can live in a shack (thinking that it will be a neat experience as long as there isn't an outhouse).

Jeannie said she especially likes talking about the gospel and her final words were a note to her friends -- "I love them and the church is true!"

Take Your Business Elsewhere

Employees say it in many ways. Sometimes it's spoken with carelessly chosen words. Other times, it's communicated by body language. Whatever the method, the source is usually poor employee attitudes and the result is always the same.

Statistics show that up to 90% of unhappy customers will never buy again from the business that offended them. What's more, they'll tell at least nine other people. As a result, the loss in company sales and profits can be geometric.

Ever since it was discovered that top-flight customer relations is one of the greatest strengths in America's most successful companies, executives have been grappling with the problem of changing employee attitudes and getting them to learn and use customer relations skills?

The key is motivation. It's been found that what motivates employees is not all that obvious. It's not greater sales or profits for the company. Nor is it fear of job loss as one might suppose.

Employees respond to expectations from their superiors. Not just "lip service"...but precise input and actions that demonstrate genuine expectations to which employees react with spirit and conviction.

Disability

Disability means that you are physically or mentally unable to perform any substantial gainful work.

To receive benefits, your disability must be expected to last for at least 12 months or result in earlier death. This expectation must be based on medical evidence and must be approved by a state agency designated by Social Security.

To be eligible for disability benefits, you must be "fully insured" and have 20 quarters (5 years) of coverage under Social Security out of the last 40 quarters (10 years). If you are disabled before age 31, or if you are blind, you may, in some cases, qualify with as few as 6 quarters of covered work. There is a waiting period of 5 full calendar months before Social Security benefits begin.

Monthly Benefits for Disability

Family members eligible for benefits, if you are disabled, are the same as if you retired. These include your child under age 18 or disabled before 22, your spouse caring for a child who is under age 16 or disabled, or your spouse age 62 or older.

This table shows examples of the approximate monthly benefit you and your dependents would be entitled to if you become disabled in 1986. In all the examples shown, the maximum amount payable for your dependents is 50% of the amount payable to you. The figures assume that you have a typical earnings history. In addition, cost-of-living increases in benefits are payable at the beginning of each year.
