Book Review:

"Grandma Lily, Polynesian Cultural Center's Hawaiian Quilter"

An important moment in Hawaii's cultural heritage took place April 3, 1820. On that morning, women sailing with their husbands and families, held their first sewing circle on the deck of the ship "Thaddeus." With this, many new ideas including quilting, were brought to Polynesia.

A new book, "Grandma Lily, Polynesian Cultural Center's Hawaiian Quilter," has just been released and is for sale in the Mission home and Shop Polynesia.

Publisher Gus Hanneman, and son-in-law of Grandma Lily, says "He feels it is time to honor the living treasures at the Polynesian Cultural Center." General Manager Ralph Rodgers states in his forward to the new publication, "Lily is a 'living treasure' who has not only added to the beauty and culture of the islands through her many exquisite quilts, but has passed on, for years yet to come, a knowledge of this art form through the many students she has so lovingly taught." He continues his remarks saying, "Most of the students have been taught on the grounds of the Polynesian Cultural Center in Laie, Hawaii."

The 32 page booklet explains a brief history of quilting in Hawaii and

Employees enjoy free entertainment

Nearly 1,000 employees and community members attended the free concert presented by Duke Galeai and the Rainbows, Tuesday at 9:30 P.M. in the Pacific Pavillion. The Samoan group, who were on a performing tour of the South Pacific, presented this performance as a gesture of thanks to the Polynesian Cultural Center and the many employees who donated blood and other services to Samoan section leader Vai Faamaligi, who has been hospitalized. Faamaligi is the sister of employee Pulefano Galeai and Rainbows leader Duke Galeai.

Duke and the three member band including keyboard, drum and bass player, enthusiastically entertained spectators with musical selections including many popular Samoan tunes and impersonations of Michael Jackson, Elvis Presley, and Ray Charles.

highlights important moments in the life of Grandma Lily. The full-color booklet features some of Lily Kama's best work, highlighted with appropriate Hawaiian proverbs and instructions on how to do Hawaiian quilting. According to Lily, "Hawaiian quilting is a true expression of a woman's feelings: It can be taught, but not mastered unless you learn to be patient and regard each quilt with great loving care." The book published by Gus Hannemann includes a forward by Ralph Rodgers, photos by Frederick K. Sutter, Ph.D. and text by Reginald L. Schwenke.

“Extra Mile” Award

Victor Moufa

Village Operations Manager Haunani Kaanaana, has nominated three year Tahitian village worker Victor Moufa for the “Extra Mile” Award.

Victor Moufa is a drummer and cooking demonstrator in the Tahitian village. According to Haunani, Victor is a quiet and unassuming fellow who cares not only about the guests, but about his fellow employees, an important quality in any company. An example of Victor’s caring attitude was shown at the recent Bastille Day celebration. At the end of the day, the village had a luau. While most of the other village workers were eating and enjoying themselves, Victor was in the kitchen making dinner plates for his fellow workers who had to leave to dance in the night show. Everyone appreciated his thoughtfulness, especially the night show workers who had worked hard all day and gone straight to the show from the village.
